Expression of interest for Regional Development Australia Far North Committee Members

July 2025

As the leading body for economic development across the far north region, Regional Development Australia Far North is seeking expressions of interest from individuals with an interest in the future growth and sustainability of the region to fill vacancies on our committee.

Scott McKay, Regional Development Australia Far North Chair says we are seeking individuals who are keen to contribute, "RDA Far North facilitates economic development opportunities and investment for our regional communities creating jobs and growth, and we welcome nominations from people with an interest in growing vibrant liveable communities."

"Industry, local government, small business, and community development should all be included in the discussion of sustainable economic growth, as it supports sustainable economic, community, environment, and cultural development. To complement the skillset of the current Committee, I am particularly interested in receiving nominations from applicants with a background the key service areas which make for vibrant liveable communities housing and childcare." Mr McKay said.

Applications are now open until the 31st July 2025, with more information and an Applicant Information Pack can be found at www.rdafn.com.au/vacancies.
